Our History

The Casino Career Institute at Atlantic Cape Community College has been training casino workers for 30 years, sending more than 50,000 graduates into the gaming industry in Atlantic City, across the states and around the world.

In 1978, CCI became the first gaming school in the nation affiliated with a fully accredited community college and licensed by the New Jersey Casino Control Commission. It continues to be the industry's leading trainer.

"Most of our students come to us as referrals from our graduates," says Dr. Patricia Gentile, Dean of Continuing Education, Resource Development and Cape May County Campus Operations. "Chances are that if you speak with a casino executive in Atlantic City, they are a CCI graduate. Our graduates are recognized and employed around the world."

The casino industry is no longer limited to just Atlantic City or Las Vegas, it's international. Gaming also goes beyond land-based casinos to include party boats, cruise lines and riverboat gambling.

CCI has grown with the industry, adapting its curriculum to meet the need for qualified dealers, security and surveillance officers, and slot technicians. Because of the considerable expertise in gaming training, CCI staff often provide consulting services to gaming vendors, gaming businesses, government agencies, enforcement organizations, and training providers in other parts of the world.

CCI has formal partnerships with higher education institutions in Asia, Europe and Canada.
